ROBIN CARLYLE MORLAND.

Private Robin Carlyle Morland, King's Liverpool Regiment, T.F., killed in action at Hendeourt, France, on the 1st September, 1918, 28 years.
Mr. Morland joined the C. P. R. Company on the 10th April, 1907, and served with them until the inauguration of the King's Liverpool Regiment, on the 8th February, 1916, and was very shortly afterwards drafted overseas. He was three times mentioned in despatches, being subsequently awarded the Military Medal for such gallantry. His Platoon Officer writing about his death says "he was very popular with all ranks, proving himself a thorough soldier and dying as he had lived a true hero."

Lt. J. S. FLANAGAN.

Second Lt. J. S. Flanagan, who died on August 22nd, joined the Passenger Dept. Canadian Pacific Railway in 1912. He enlisted in Dec., 1914, in the London Irish Rifles, received his commission in Nov., 1915, in the 3rd County of London Regt., and had seen much service and fighting at the Front. Early in the morning of August 22 he was shot through the lungs while leading his men but continued to carry on until he was satisfied that everything was going well. He then started to walk back to the dressing station but later had to be picked up by stretcher bearers and died a few hours later. His chaplain writes, "He was one of the bravest men I have ever met."

Second Lt. J. S. Flanagan, who died on August 22nd, joined the Passenger Dept. Canadian Pacific Railway in 1912. He enlisted in Dec., 1914, in the London Irish Rifles, received his commission in Nov., 1916, in the 3rd County of London Regt., and had seen much service and fighting at the Front. He would be just thankful when the Duke of Berksford Home had shut on his feet over—Berksford, who had so nearly brought disaster on a proud and honorable line. Only—and here he paused—how could he have been so severely, how barren his life would be without her! How could he now profane his triumph!

"According to the laws of the Medes and Persians," he sternly said, "Berksford married the woe he loved, under his breath, realizing that the obligations of his position required that he should marry a woman who would be his help-mate and his beloved to a desert station, now, had the white light of passion been the sole dictation behind us, we surely open up."

But Berksford was, though the man might forgive the woman, the Duke of Berksford might not forgive his Berksford. And that was the worst of it, and thus, comely, honorable woman who slept in the family vault, might not be his from their trial to re-

A Mother's Sympathy

IF there is ever a time when a girl needs the sympathy of a loving mother it is in nervous diseases. Nerves give out, for there is no condition under which one feels so utterly helpless and discouraged.

Nervous diseases are too often misunderstood. The family doctor's knowledge of diseases of the nerves is limited, and he sometimes makes the mistake of joining with those who are doctors and say, "think she is ill," and "putting it on."

And so it happens that patients suffering from neurasthenia and nervous prostration are often greatly wronged and even cruelly treated.

The mental tortures of nervous sufferers are often so indescribable that no physical pain can compare with them.

One day the patient may look perfectly well or she may be mentally ill and gloomy. One day she may feel better and begin to be encouraged, only to find that she is more discouraged ment must take the form of nourishment for the starved and depleted nerve cells.

While there is not the hopelessness in such cases that there is when paralysis is in the building up process, must necessarily be slow at first, and the patient needs all the sympathy and encouragement that she can get.

There is a question that the regular use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will restore the run-down nervous system, but the treatment must be persisted in if the best results are to be obtained.

The use of the nerve food will stimulate the appetite and improve digestion. It is important that the food should be the most palatable and most nourishing in order that an abundance of rich, red blood may be formed.

The patient should get into the sunshine and out into the fresh air, if possible. Her food should be as cheerful and pleasant. Keep out the pessimists and gloom dispensers.

spoke from his heart. It would be a good thing, a splendid thing, he thought for Flora and Rupert to marry. But he was not sure that it might appear in the eyes of society, he thought it a very natural arrangement. For it would be the making of a new family, a family of the very best discipline of pain—the union of the man who had failed to achieve success with the girl who must be eternally conscious of her raised shoulders he' hunched back.

They would comfort and compensate each other, and, perhaps, who could say, a future lay before Rupert, and Flora would be the proud mother of a child—a daughter tall and straight.

The laws of punishment, sternness and compensation—oh, how beautiful they were and what a splendid hand presided over the lives and destinies of men!

The carriage pulled up. House was reached. He glanced after his husband before he got out to help her descend.

A woman stood at the door of her tent...

She had noticed the gleam of rifle on the table and the noisy whisper of the papers as she left her tent...

The candle and mule had been left to close to some tamarisk trees...

Yet surely he was in the desert, the one going to find peace...

Is This Your Bill?

"The Sins of the Flesh" are punished in this world—not in the next.

Disease is not an accident, nor is it sent by Providence. It is Nature's punishment for the breaking of her laws.

Hemorrhoids, for example, occasion an infinite degree of discomfort, suffering and misery. So does a fissure or a fistula.

But such punishments are meted out to those who sin against Nature in two ways, by neglecting to maintain regular, easy, thorough evacuation of the bowels—what is a worse habit, the taking of pills, castor oil, purgative mineral waters, salts, etc., with the mistaken idea of overcoming constipation by forcing the bowels to move unassisted.

But the Nujol Treatment for Constipation prevents such sins of the flesh, or mitigates the punishment therefor.

Nujol helps to re-establish easy, regular, thorough evacuation of the bowels.

Nujol is not a drug, does not act like any drug. Nujol is absolutely harmless.

Nujol keeps the waste matter soft, moist and easily voided.

Nujol is not absorbed, does not effect the body—acts as a mechanical lubricant, which can be used for any length of time.

Get Nujol from your druggist. Take Nujol according to directions.

MR. GEORGE EASTERNBOOE
(Formerly President)

In the death of Mr. George Easternbooe, who passed away at Barre, on Monday evening, November 25, 1913, the Columbia has lost one of her most distinguished and respected citizens. Though almost 77 years of age, yet he was active up to some five months ago when he fell ill of various ailments, and later hypostatic pneumonia.

Notwithstanding his great age, he managed a flour-milling business, and playing splendid chess, golf, etc., the night.

On October 18, 1913, he was born in Devonshire, England, a country in that position until the year 1870 when he removed to the village of Tread, twenty-five miles to the north where he opened a milling business for himself.

Here he built up a splendid flour milling company, gradually increasing in that position until the year 1870 when he removed to the village of Tread, twenty-five miles to the north where he opened a milling business for himself.

365 Happy Reminders of You

Give him a Gillette for Christmas.

It is a very difficult thing to determine exactly a man's fancy in the matter of cigars, neckwear, books, and other common gifts.

But you cannot go wrong if you give him a Gillette. It is the really useful gift, something that he would select if you consulted him.

Imagine what it means to a man to have a chin as smooth as your own, to have his shaving time reduced to 5 minutes, so that he can shave every day.

Imagine, too, how grateful he will feel to you 365 times in the year. Buy him a Gillette Safety Razor. It represents the most happy inspiration as a gift, and is five dollars well spent.

Sold at all jewelers, druggists and hardware dealers.

A FIERY ORDEAL

BY BERTHA M. CLAY

CHAPTER I
DOCUMENTARY
"You will not sell me, Federal?"
"No."
"You are sure of yourself?"
"I am sure that I am not talking to you as I am I. I was not, my darling."
The words were passionately spoken, and the man who was standing to the right of the speaker looked up with an evil light in his eyes, and, with a sudden clasp of the speaker by his breast, with responsive measures of affection (if not of love) to him, he might have clasped the speaker in his arms and kissed his hand and a look.
"I forget myself," she said. "Don't be afraid of me. There may be no tears about."
and he was his and his only.
"Bring nothing with you?" he asked. "But that is right in the way," and then, with a parting call he slipped through the open window and disappeared. The man who was home was about as quietly and as gracefully as a ghost.
The man who had heard all this (the first word to the best prize man) the hands, off a stone's throw from the speaker, had been looking at him might be rather than she should be. He was a man of a certain age, with a certain amount of money, and he was certainly things for whose sake he had made this dejected look. He was a man of a certain age, with a certain amount of money, and he was certainly things for whose sake he had made this dejected look. He was a man of a certain age, with a certain amount of money, and he was certainly things for whose sake he had made this dejected look.

"We are quite," says the stationer, "in the station, but I have not time to tell you all the details of our work. I have made sure of that to-morrow, then, at the Hotel Oak."
"Yes," at four o'clock.
"And you will take care, and put them all up with the seal!"
"I will do the best I can to be at Mr. Hatton's. A message is to come to me when there is no one to hear it but myself, and I am, I am to leave a note for—for him to fetch me. That will take care of it."
"But the chances were that if you

"And give us plenty, my own Fedora. It shall be the aim of my life to make you happy. You shall be the admiring of all men, and the envied of all women in the old world. In sunny Italy, my sweet, we will forget our slavery."¹²

"I have not been a slave, Orsini. He has been very kind to me, and if I

"You would have been content with your bondage and this sordid life, is that it? I think not, Fredora. I think I found you pining like a wild girl caged, my own darling. Don't think of him; he has not an idea in this world beyond his cows and sheep and the well-being of his farmyard."

"I don't think he has," and the woman laughed. "I know it stands before me. Don't talk about it, Ormsby. I shall forget it after-to-morrow; it has done one good thing for me."

"What is that?"

"Found money for me. I have more than a hundred pounds. He thinks I have spent most of it, but I have saved a good deal of it."

Walter Clitheroe had worked as a driven horse to make this home; he had pitched and saved as few young men ever do. He had denied himself almost the necessary food to keep his self in health, that the rest to which he hoped to bring the bright bird had tamed as he thought for himself might be made a fitting one.

nigg sweetness went straight to his heart and took it captive forever. De Sonnaz had been an Austrian, a man of violent temper and a certain habit and his daughter had met him and gone to a situation when he went to

"I don't want to stand in her light" she said "or so discourage you more than I can help but she is: no wife for a man in your position: she will make you sorry for your goodness to her before many months are over your head."

"I will risk it," Walter Clitheroux

The lady shrugged her shoulders and smiled at him with something of pity.

"Argument would be wasted on you," she said. "Love is blind, and deaf as well, I think. I only hope that you will never remember what I have said to you with any regret of her causing. I may tell you this, Mr. Clitherne—Mim de Sonnas will leave my house whether she marries you or not. The qualities I have mentioned to you are too disagreeably prominent for us to keep her any longer."

"Mr. home will be ready for her," the young man said, and took his leave; and in a very short time he had married the dark beauty, and taken her to Hameldown, where everything had seemed to go well till now; and what he considered the unkind words that were meant to part them.

He crept quickly round to the back of the house, and reached his own room without having been seen, and his wife followed the window through which he had disappeared, and sat down to think and plan.

"Nothing could be better," she said; "nothing could have happened more opportunely. Errerbody knows that Ormsby is going tomorrow, and no one expects to see him back again. If I am seen with him, what matters? We shall be far away from all the slanderous tongues of Lindsfield, and the sordid drudgery of a hush farm. I drive with my darling through the business with Mr. Hutton about land; I hope the spirit will lead him to go to the house before and find out that I am not the don't think I need be afraid. Hutton never will talk business to his wife; they will settle it all in court, I expect. I was so frightened when he came back, need not have been; he knows his law."

His face told her nothing she took him the tea, which he eagerly like a man choking thirst, but he would eat nothing had died in Lindenfield he told her. She little thought that the only he had taken that day, had been knowledge of his wife's faithfulness and the discovery of the perfidy the man he had called his friend.

CHAPTER II.

Fedora Clithero slept that night as wicked creatures can sleep while those they wrong and are wretched. Her hand gazed upon her dark locks as she lay unconscious of his fulness, and he could have killed as she lay, if he had not loved so, even in her sin and degradation he could have laid down his life for her.

And the morning dawned, and sun rose bright and clear, as

"Am I to have supper ready?" she asked. "The mistress may be late."

"Do whatever she said," Mr. Walter Clithero replied, and the door of the room his wife had hated forever as she thought, came down to consume with himself, and he went out to his study as usual.

He bade his man get a horse ready that he drove to the stable.

ALFALFA AND PROSPERITY

If there is one crop more than any other which the prosperity of a country may be truly estimated by, it is alfalfa. This wonderful crop has been the foundation of successful agriculture in the United States, and alfalfa is now becoming a staple crop in Canada. In Southern Alberta, alfalfa is now producing a record crop, and it is estimated that the alfalfa crop of 1918 will reach a total of 1,000,000 tons. This is a record for the province, and it is a testament to the prosperity of the province. The alfalfa crop is a result of the irrigation system which has been developed in the province, and it is a testament to the skill and industry of the farmers of the province. LIQUOR DISAPPEARED

A Corvair delivered to the Ottawa Journal Press says "Traveller Sales of Brockville, produced three cases containing 10 bottles and a suit case supposed to contain seven bottles of liquor. In the police court room here-last week the suit case was opened it was found to contain only three bottles, one of which was broken. Mr.
Spinks says he packed seven bottles in it and Brockville the Magistrate and Corvair, but had later taken out to Brockville, and brought back. The Magistrate ordered the liquor confis-

SERIOUS FIRE AT DELORO

The worst fire in many years occurred at Deloro on Tuesday morning when the big building housing the "Pro-fish" was burned to the ground. It is thought the fire started from the pipe that the big stove in the kitchen, but the loss story was in flames before it was discovered and the fire spread with great rapidity. The building was very large and was a frame one with a lot of heavy timber. As a result there was no possibility of saving it when it was not a good start. The fire was also known as the big burning house and at times about three hundred men were housed there. The ground floor was used as a big dining hall and the upper floor, while the basement was used as a store and larder shop. It was a heavy
one. The total loss will be about $10, 000, partly covered by Insurance—

Ministers Deplore Present High Prices

BROOKVILLE, Dec. 17.—The local Ministerial Association has addressed an open letter to the Town Council and the Board of Trade deploring the present high prices of the necessities of life, and urging them to take steps to take action under the Government order in Council passed last summer which authorizes the Minister of Finance to do as far as possible. After deploring the destruction of the Canada Carriage Factory by fire and the closing of the National Manufacturing Co., connected with the production of essential goods which have thrown many men out of work, with consequent losses falling upon their families, and requesting their bodies to take steps to have the business of the carriage factory and of the National Manufacturing Co. re-established in some simple form, the communication closes with the following: "We think the time has come to consider such steps as will ensure that the necessities of life to those in authority are not prepared to maintain themselves on the necessities of another's misfortune."

Why?
Because at Christmas time we all turn our minds away

80 Canadians Totally Blind

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The Canadian Minister of Health, Mr. Bennett, has issued a statement for the Blind and the Blind Canadian, more than thirty is all. A post office was presented to the Minister asking that the Government give to each one of the blind Canadian officers or agents 25 acres of homegrown land, with out stipulation that it must be properly cultivated, and suggesting to be used for the purpose of raising livestock.

Mr. Bennett, who spoke upon reporting the petition pointed out that in Australia blind soldiers have been given free permanent transport to the Government railways.

Mr. Bennett stated that a group of blind men and women are now in the process of being organized in Canada. He said that there are about thirty blind men in the Cana-

THE PEACE CHRISTMAS.

The Intelligence wishes every one of its readers all the joy and happiness possible this wonderful Christmas, when for the first time in four years this true spirit of "Peace on Earth and Good Will to Men" can be realized to the full. After more than four years of a world war in which Canada has participated to an almost unbelievable extent, there are scars and aching hearts and Christmas firesides where the spirit of the one who has given us this gift, the customary Christmas spirit should not perish from the hearts of his people. Christmas is a festival. Brightening the shades of life, it is a festival that shines the proud thought of that heroic sacrifice which beaved even the darkest portals of death itself that freedom and liberty should live triumphant. "Who dies if England lives, and who lives if England dies?" was well said, for the spirit of England, embracing as it does the whole world, which for a thousand years has braved the battle and the breeze, is the embodiment of freedom and honor and righteousness to all nations.

Let us rejoice that the dark days of war are over, let us hope forever, the sacrifice has been great but it has not been in vain, and the terrible menace of German domination which has made even the stoutest faith waver at times, is now but a disagreeable memory, submerged in the glory of victory so stupendous as to be hardly conceivable as yet.

The war has been fought and won. Let us turn our energies with as much spirit and determination into the great problems of a happy peace as we put into the task of winning the war, and all will be well.

Again wishing our readers all joy and happiness in this first Christmas of a new and better era of peace and good will,—let us all contribute our bit, big or little, to make it so.

TIME FOR A CHANGE.

Quite a few Canadian school boys have arrived recently at "Bingen on the Rhine." Quite a far cry from school days and memory of that piece in the old school reader where "A soldier of the Legion lay dying in Algiers."

Now that the soldiers are returning and the question of re-employment one for close and earnest consideration the status of women workers who have taken the places of enlisted men is a large feature. The Department Militia at Ottawa has made a move in this direction with the issue of an order that in future no married woman with a husband able to support her will be given employment in the Militia Department, and while there will be no general demobilisation immediately it is thought that in reductions of the staff the married women will be the first to be released.

The destruction of French and Belgium industries inspires the Cologne Chamber of Commerce with a vision of a rapid recovery of German export trade. The Peace Conference will see that Germany does not profit by her union destruction of Allied industries.

President Wilson's change in place which will result in his visiting London sooner has anticipated what properly results in the cancellation of Premier Borden's plans to spend Christmas with the Canadian Prime Minister in January. It is desirable that the Premier, who is a close friend of President Wilson, remain close to that gentleman during his sojourn in England. It would be to initiate him into the dignities of the British Empire, and to give him time for Woodrow and be pleasant for Robert, both of whom are in the medical all round, and prevent any little misunderstandings which might have occurred. Woodrow's viewpoint, more seeming than real, perhaps, which is apt to occur to a student of the subject, is that the President, who is known, and he also knows Woodrow Wilson, and as the Premier is a close friend of the United States of America, which can be a helpful or a harmful factor in the world already in progress, no precautions are too small to be overruled.

"There, all about his towering grandeur,
 The darkness fell, and now was far,
 The darkness filled with a living fear,
 That whispered at the Emperor's ear,
 The armies of the dead drew near,
 Beneath an eastern star."

The trumpet blared in Nazareth,
 The Stars in rows again,
 Across the bitter waters of death,
 The horrid tale from Nazareth,
 And the Power we mocked as wasted life!
 Returns, in power, to reign!
 Return, in white, Nazareth,
 To save His world again.

They are Carmanles, with 1,154 persons on board, of whom 3,850 are soldiers, and the Tunisian with 983 on board of which 638 belong to the C.E.F. The Carmanles will, it is expected, dock at Halifax on the 29th and the Tunisian about Jan. 3. Unofficial advices state that the large Cunard liner Aquitania, with 4,000 on board, will arrive at Halifax about the second week of the new year. The date of her sailing is, however, not yet available.

The classification by military districts of those on board the two boats officially announced is as follows:

On board the Carmanit are two officers, 236 other ranks, for the London district. For Toronto district there are 10 officers, 1,906 other ranks.

On the Tunisian, for the London district, there are 3 officers and 37 men of other ranks. For the Toronto district there are 23 officers and 95 men of other ranks.

Record of Canadian Corps To Mons Capture

FOUR DIVISIONS OF DOMINION'S TROOPS WERE FITTED
AT VARIOUS TIMES AGAINST FIFTY SEVEN GERMAN DIVISIONS BETWEEN START-OF-OFFENSIVE AND SIGN-ING-OF-ARMISTICE.

The following despatch is forwarded from the office of Sir R. Kemp, Canadian Overseas Minister of Militia, by Fred James, official correspondent Military Forces—
Canada troops have furnished a valuable contribution in British military history. The first troops to enter Mons the day the armistice was signed were those of the 4th Royal Wiltshire Regiment of Canada, which battalions, through the parent regiment, the 4th and 5th Light Infantry of Canada, is affiliated with the famous Black Watch.
(On August 23, 1914, the first British battalion to leave Mons was the 4th Light Infantry of the Scottish Highland Watch.

From August 8 to November 11, the date the armistice was declared, the Canadian Corps captured 24,000 prisoners, 750 artillery guns of all calibres, 2,500 machine guns, hundreds of trucks, mortars, and huge quantities of all kinds of material.

In the last three months of the war the corps advanced to a depth of approximately 450 square miles. The principal towns captured by the Canadians in that time were Cambrai and Le Cateau on October 9; Demer, October 29; Valenciennes, November 2. At least 150 small towns and villages were captured in addition to those larger centres, which released from German domination over 200,000 French and Belgian citizens.

The three outstanding battles fought by the Canadian Corps since August 1918 were: Amiens, which began August 8; Arras, on August 26; and Cambrai, September 27. In these three battles, and in the advance from Cambrai to Mons through Valenciennes, the Canadian Corps engaged and destroyed a total of fifty-seven German divisions, several of which were so badly decimated as to render them useless as fighting organizations.

At Amiens we advanced in less than two weeks a depth of 35 miles. At Arras and Cambrai the depth of penetration into the enemy lines was 21 miles, and from Cambrai to Mons 27 miles. At Amiens we captured 12,000 prisoners; Arras, 10,000; Cambrai, 7, 177; and from Cambrai to Mons, 2, 525.

German Hopes Gone
It has been definitely established that when the Canadian Corps captured Le Cateau in the darkness of the morning of October 9, the German hopes of victory vanished utterly. The victims of a sure and certain defeat on the field began to retire as rapidly as the tide began to rise, as rapidly as possible towards the Rhine, protecting their backward movements by fighting rearguard actions with machine guns.
After the fall of Cambrai we took up line to the north towards Douai and began the advance in the direction of Valenciennes. On October 16 the 2nd Division attacked and occupied Cambrai with little opposition. The 3rd Battalion took Thun Lezard and Thun St.
north of Cambrai, assisted by the Canadian Independent Composed of the Motor Machine Gun Battalion and the Cyclists' Corps. This force prepared the enemy from roads in several positions from which they could do good work for us and had for the opposition.

The next day the Second Division again attacked and cleared the Bœlle out of town, ending by the capture of the artillery, which put down a heavy barrage on our troops. By 10:20 on the morning of October 17, the strongest counter attack from the direction of Arras, started by artillery and gas tanks. It was a hard fight on our part, because all the tanks were quickly knocked out, but the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Divisions, with the 2nd 386 prisoners.

On October 13 the First Division occupied the villages of Arras, Launoy, and several other centres in the northwest, and to be driven back without second Division pressed on and occupied themselves in the village of Hilland. The enemy was evidently definitely on the move, with the result that a counter attack north of Hilland was broken. The result that we netted two officers and 190 other men as prisoners and took possession of Lake St. Amant.

Before the enemy evacuated the territory he held he found time to destroy the bridges, bridges, and blow huge holes in cross roads, and in every possible way tried to impede our advance. By October 13 the First Division had crossed the Canal de la Sambre and established a line just behind the Perche, Fronsart, Villers en Terre, Launoy, Dilly and Sur le Tertre. At Valenciennes and in the neighbourhood which led to the First Division, nearly 2,000 civilians were released on October 19. On the night of October 19-20 the Fourth Battalion of the Fourth Division, entered the large mining town of Douai after a sharp fight on the outskirts, and the 25,000 civilians there welcomed them with most illustrious enthusiasm.

Before the end of the month the First and Fourth Divisions were established on the outskirts of Valenciennes on 9 the running north, and the number of civilians freed by that time totalled 75,000, all of whom became a charge on the Canadian Corps for ransom, for the Germans had robbed them of every particle of food and their clothing as here as Mother Holland's.

Taking Valenciennes
The Third Division took over from the First Division in the vicinity of Hilland. On November 1 the Fourth Division attacked south of Valenciennes and captured the town. The town was an attack which was a successful capture, for over 800 enemy dead were counted after the show at the port of the city, and we captured 1,400 prisoners, several artillery guns, and many machine guns. The 1st and 2nd Battalions and the 12th Brigade of the Eleventh and Twelfth Divisions held hands in the Place d'Armes in Valenciennes since named Place de Canada.

From Valenciennes the Third and Fourth Divisions began to push on towards Mons, the Fourth operating on the right of the Mons, the Third on the left. So far as spectacular success in the fighting was concerned, there were none. There was some fighting, but the enemy was too much confused by retreating to prevent being completely routed that he had little time to offer much resistance. As our men entered towns and villages they were killed and embraced and held as diverters and treated as such. That was the end of the fighting. The town was cleared of the enemy by about November 1, and the Fourth Division was ordered just over the Belgian border by the Second Division. By the 18th November the Second and Third Divisions were on the outskirts of Arras, the Second on the right and the Third at the very mouth of the city itself.

On the morning of the 11th, at four o'clock, the 4th Battalion (The Montreal Rifles) the P.C.C.L., R.C.R.'s, and the 4th Battalion, of the Seventh Battalion, attacked. The city was

67 YEARS OF GROWTH

IN the early days the founder of this business made a few gross of matches a day, and sold them himself, driving his horse and wagon as far as Toronto. Today, from automatic machines, 70,000,000 matches a day are turned out to keep Canada's home fires burning. And not matches alone; industrial fireware, household helps, and a host of paper products have been added to this line.

The House of Eddy

has become an institution which touches the daily life of the Canadian public in a thousand different ways.

There is a reason back of this steady and consistent progress. Business institutions do not grow to such proportions by accident. It takes real merit to accomplish such a result; merit in the goods themselves, and in the concern which is back of them.
When you buy matches, see that Eddy's name is on the box. When you are in need of some of the familiar household helps, such as a wastebasket, a pail, or a washboard, remember that there is an Eddy product which will fill your needs, made from light and durable Indestructible Fireware. Remember also that Eddy's Paper Specialties are standard.

Huns Spared Hospital Ship "Essequibo" Off Irish Coast

HITHERTO UNPUBLISHED STORY OF HEROISM OF CANADIAN NURSES—U-BOAT COMMANDER BELIEVED TO BE RENEGADE IRISHMAN WHO BOASTED THAT HE DID NOT SINK GENUINE HOSPITAL SHIPS.

By Second Bomb
The reawakening of cannibalism rarely allows the possibility of another story of heroism. Of Canadian sailors sailing into the jaws of death, only the possibility of a story is left to the people of the world. "Shipwrecked"—but with a bigger ship, but—in the face of what they thought was a small boat, they had a bigger ship, but—men from Canada and their hands starved and never helped. It was a story of cannibalism, every day saved them and their ship.

Early in 1917 the Canadian Hospital Ship "Despatch" was on the voyage from Canada to England. She had discharged a full load of wounded and sick at Halifax and had taken on board medical stores and hospital reinforcements. There were nurses and order-the alarm was sound for all to take their stations another shell burst, just where the "Essequibo" would have been had she continued her course.

"Immediately stop your engines, or we will sink you," came a wireless from the U-boat.

The davits were already swung out ready for launching and male personnel looked after the girls and part of the crew embraced the lifeboats. The submarine was now so near that the ship news yesterday, may prove to be the best Christmas gift possible to the wife of Capt. J. S. they could see the crew manning the forward gun. It was a tense time. No one knew what the next act of the enemy, rushing along the surface at full speed, would be. Everyone thought the ship doomed unless a miracle happened.

"What kind of ship are you?" the Germans had asked, and the reply had been sent: "Canadian-hospital ship 'Essequibo'."

"Any officers and cargo on board?"

"Medical stores and nurses only," was the answer.

Then came the curt command: "Immediately captain will come on board us with manifest."

The captain had the papers ready to take with him if the ship was sunk.

she clambered into the boat and was rowed to the sub, now so close alongside that the nurses seemed to be looking into the muzzles of her two four-inch guns. When the boat reached the submarine the captain disappeared into the superstructure while a German officer and five armed sailors were rowed back to the steamer. The Hun lieutenant demanded that the second officer show him the cargo, and he went below, while the sailors stood sentry on deck. After about half an hour they returned and inspected the wireless room, bridge and main deck. The lieutenant sent a wireless message to the Albatross, which sailed from New York, September 27, with a cargo for African ports, carried wireless and no report was heard from her, she was given up for lost, and it was generally supposed that she had struck a mine. This opinion was accepted by the underwriters to the extent that

A semaphore signal from the U-boat was answered by the Lieutenant and he sent the boat back for the hospital ship's captain. The lieutenant and German sailors were then rowed away.

WAR BOARD CONTROLS STEEL PRICES.

The War Trade Board of the Dominion Government announces that in view of recent developments which have made the steel situation somewhat easier, and especially in view of the fact that certain United States restrictions have been lifted and others modified, in future it will be unnecessary to apply to the War Trade Board for releases from stocks on forms which were provided for this purpose; neither will it be necessary to supply monthly reports as in the past. Dealers and others are now at liberty to dispose of their stocks whenever they can, but the War Trade Board reserves the right to fix the price in the event of receiving complaints to the effect that prices which are being charged are excessive.

A POLITICAL CASBY.

ownership is incipient Bolshevism, a policy that must, be avoided at all costs. These two newspapers are among the few that supported Sir Wilfrid Laurier's forces in the last election. They were willing to desert the Canadian army in its hour of need. Now they are hostile to the Hydro-Electric System and to popular control of steam railways.

In this they are in complete consistency with their former political records. The Daily News has always said, and not without proof, that the official Liberal party as constituted under Sir Wilfrid Laurier has always been, and still is, reactionary to the edge of Bourbonism. The Globe and other sincere advocates of gRadicalism are beginning to see the light. For long years they reposed a singular trust in the Radicalism of a leader who never did anything until Senator Dandurand and the political enemies of Sir Wilfrid Laurier considered it "safe." Doubled by his constant

Mr. Panchuk's employer, Casby, imposed on everyone for years because of his long white hair and his expression of fat-headed benevolence. When Panchuk cut off the one and destroyed the other, Sir Wilfrid Laurier ker is the Casby of Canada. Real Liberals who are represented in the Union Cabinet begin to see the real man—even though his white hair still flows over his coat collar and his expression of benevolence persists. The last straw is his amazing praise of the German people as "one of the noblest races on the world."

HOTEL FOR WOMEN.

The Montreal Journal of Commerce makes a suggestion that is worthy of consideration in the following:

"A citizen of Toronto, who has had experience in the hotel business is promoting a scheme which gives promise of supplying a want that is felt in most of our large cities. Women and girls are, in ever increasing numbers, coming into the cities to earn their living. How to find decent accommodation for them at moderate rates is one of the greatest of our city problems. The Torontonians believe that an hotel can be constructed to give a girl a good room with running water at $4 per week, or $5 and $6 for one with private bath attached. A laundry under proper supervision would allow the girls to do their own washing, and a cafeteria would supply them with good food at low rates. The whole establishment would be conducted under conditions that would give the girls comfortable homes. It is believed that such a hotel, carried on under the authority of ladies who would be interested in the work, would be remunerative. There would be no color of charity in its management. It would be a pure business enterprise, making its pay from the business of the girls.

"If this Toronto project proves successful it will be an example that should be followed by others. In all our large cities there is urgent need of just such accommodation as is proposed in Toronto."

One of the motions at the Farmers' Convention was "Let the Silent Man be Heard". The appeal was irresistible. Mr. Gordon Wadron at once made a few remarks, says the Toronto Globe.

The Hun subs were going to starve old England out, but lo and behold they had to come begging a hand-out.
